Fellowship House in Camden now has a new gym floor and a beautiful “Butterfly Park,” with help from the Rotary Club of Haddonfield. Located on South Broadway in South Camden, Fellowship House provides a wide range of children’s programs, addiction programs, and food and clothing ministries.

“Butterfly Park” resulted from an initial gift from the Rotary Club of Haddonfield with numerous donors; trees from the New Jersey Tree Foundation, and equipment installation donated by Greenlane Contractors.

Rotary International is a worldwide non-profit service organization. Since 1992, the Rotary Club of Haddonfield has worked closely with Fellowship House, an urban ministry that provides a safe and supportive environment for youth.
